We publish the latest order of Gen. Rosecrans, respecting Kentuckians who are tired of the rebellion, and wish to return home and abide by the laws as good citigenerous policy. It may sometimes be abused; but we can better afford to put up with these abuses than to adopt a contrary policy. The sooner all return to their duty the Government the sooner will the contest be over, and it is the policy of the Government to invite a return than to repel it. The latter course would be suicidal. Some may clamor against this as not comporting with their notions of a vigorous prosecution of the war. With such men vigor is vindictiveness, which, in fact, defeats its own pur nose oftener than otherwise.

A general amnesty to all that would return to their allegiance would not be out of place. It has to come some time; and the only question is, has the time come now?

There is a strong disposition in some quarters to set up one's own notions of the in this State that a part of the measures proposed by the powers at Washington greatly aggravate the disease. It resembles the policy of the quack who wished to throw his patient into fits, the doctor being h-l on fits.

The policy we allude to is believed in Kentucky universally to be worse than the ease itself; much more likely to kill the than to cure him. These radicals are jet is of the border State men, and would reject their counsel; but don't they know that the border State men know bet- the Border States to the Union. ter the character of this disease than they the remedy? They ought to suspect by this time that they have not taken the best course. They have had their own way, and the results are not flattering. We are of pinion that the policy of Kentucky would have ended the rebellion before this time; the contrary policy is unpromising even

Kentucky is not loyal, we are told; and by the same authority the Democratic party of the North are not loyal. Take both their statements together and they prove one proposition clearly, and that is, and frank men. The design and the effect that we have more loval men in Kentucky is, to relieve the army of the excitements hat we have more loyal mem in Kentucky than there are in any free State; for we ave a majority of two or three to one who ill never let the Union slide by their con sent. All this comes of an intolerant fac when, in the judgment of better Union men than they ever were, their remedies are more likely to kill than to cure the pa-

It was in his division, upon paper, it is true, but in point of fact he has been since that brigade marched to Glasgow, therefore, that, independent of the General's sickness, he is blameless in the matter, and e has been so sick as to be compelled to relinquish even the command of the troops immediately with him at Gallatin, The econd Indiana cavalry never belonged to Justice to one prostrated by sickness would seem to forbid that he should have credit for a disaster to troops over which he had no control, except as state i. These troops were, doubtless, properly posted; but that was not even by his order.

The order removing them from the main body of his command and sending them to Glasgow, thence to Tompkinsville, thence to Hartsville, emanated from General Dumont's superiors.

TROUBLE BREWING IN KENTUCKY .- Seri ous trouble is to be apprehended in Kentucky, growing out of the eternal determination of the leading politicians of that State to resist a policy looking to a vigorous prosecution of the war. The position of Ken-tucky never has been reliably loyal. Commencing with "armed neutrality," her supto tof the Government has always been with an "i." Her representatives have exercised a mischievous influence at Washington, insisting upon a timid conduct of the war, as best calculated to soften the hostile spirit of the rebels in their own State, and save

Their whole policy was concentrated in and fairly represented by the course of Gen. Buell, whose removal announced to a rejoicing country that Border Statesmen were no longer potent at Washington. longer able to control the President, they have commenced their mischievous machi nations in their own State, and, if we are properly informed, are now engaged in arraying the army in Kentucky against the Federal authority. In this, as in all of their movements, the nigger is the begining and the end of the movement. The regulations of the Army of the United States forbid all commanders from using the military power for the return of fugitive slaves to their masters. The wisdon of the regulation is apparent to all candid and burden of the slavery question, and it has worked well wherever it has been en-forced. There has been no trouble except The Kentucky politicians now insist that the army in Kentucky must be used for the return of runaway negroes, that the military arm of the Government shall be exertd toward restoring slaves to their masters

They have already persuaded one General Burbridge to issue an order forbidding the negroes inside of his camps, and a citizen of Wisconsin, who has been some weeks with the army in Kentucky, informed us last evening that Gov. Robinson had for-mally demanded such an order from Major General Granger, and that it had been promised. Aside from the slavery question, the exact principle here involved is, the supremacy of the National or the State authority. The order of General Burbridge. an United States officer, in command of a livision of United States soldiers, is a vin lation of the regulations of the army and of the enactments of the Federal Congress. It is claimed as a Kentucky triumph, and all the possible pressure is being brought upon the other Generals in the State to persuade them to follow the disloyal footsteps of Burbridge. If it be true that Gov-ernor Robinson has made a demand upon General Granger, then we are to understand that the State Government assumes the responsibility of this effort to compel the rmy in Kentucky to violate the regulations. We are informed that in some quarters the feeling is getting quite bitter be tween the soldiers and the citizens, and a communication which we find in this morning's Enquirer, written at Frankfort, con firms this statement. The writer complains that the citizens are not allowed to enter their camps to search for their negroes, and, after relating several incidents, uses this language:

"Union soldiers have treated our people nearly as bad as the rebels did. Both have treated us in a way no longer to be endured Dumont's army not only stole negroes, horses, wagons and goods of every kind, but actually stole the clothes of the poor negroes, whom they professed to be serving. Other commanders were being from rebel invasion. According to the presentation, our army is composed of thieves demoralized by the great number of slaves and cut-throats, who steal anything they can lay their hands on. What gratitude! After these calumn e, which should make

Union men suffer alike with Secessionists. Where, in God's name, does their protection com from? What inducement is there for them to remain loyal? Would such a course be calculated to even make loyal men of Sccession proclivities? I am a soldier in the Federal army, and was born and raised in a Northern State, where my home now is I believe slavery to be a moral evil, but did I know or believe that my Government had or would adopt a policy antagonistic to the interests and welfare of loyal men, in any place or State, I should expect to soon see our whole country thrown into a state of revolution, and end in anarchy! The above is very carefully and artfully worded. Now, allow me to try my hand at it:

General Orders No. -.] I. It is hereby ordered that all military ommanders in the army of the United States shall not themselves, nor subordinate officers, nor soldiers, influence, bribe, steal, nor in any other manner whatsoever interfere with slaves of loyal persons, unless it becomes a military necessity to employ them. In such cases the slaves of rebels shall be first taken; and, if not enough, the residue will be taken from loyal owners. Vouchers shall be given in accordance with the labor performed; and on the vouchers to those of doubtful loyalty shall be indorsed-To be paid when loyalty is prove and the oath taken.

II. When military necessity does not re quire the use of slave labor, those coming within the lines voluntarily, both of loyal and rebel owners, shall be excluded from the lines. In case a slave of a rebel master comes into the lines with valuable information from the armies or movements of the enemy, said slave shall receive his free papers and protection.

Mr. Sensationist, how do you like it? Excluding slaves from the lines is not returning them; and when slaves are stolen, o perced within the lines, they are not fugitives! Again, the term "regulations," used so fluently in said article, leaves the author plenty of room for dodging. Notwithstanding I am anxious to get hold of the—book! If he means the Army Regulations, he must have been dreaming. If he had reference to any General Order, he mistook the title. Now, as I frankly confess myself befogged as to where the erudite gentleman of the said "article" got his authority, he will confer (not an "ETERNAL" obligation) a great favor by forwarding, through a copy of his paper, to Memphi the genuine title and whereabouts of said

The author in many places mistook prevari cation and falsehood for facts. I'm not a very good shot, but the author of the said stretched the truth until it cried the spoons from the Governor's residence aloud for mercy. I have particular reference to this clause:

The soldiers of the rank and file had the example set before them; if not in practice they got it by theory. I do not wish to be understood that all the Federal soldiers in Kentucky or elsewhere thus behave; but those particularly from certain sections and under certain officers are guilty of gross misconduct. I take no man's word for it. I assert what I know and have evidence of. The Times continues:

"We are convinced that the state of affairs in Kentucky is critical." r-a-t-h-e-r t-h-i-n-k n-o-t! By nor protecting them! This, sir, will be the universal answer given should fresh troubles accrue. During last night and this forenoon the rebels have considerably extended their works and strengthened their positions. Large bodies of troops are now to be seen where but few were to be found yesterday. According to my reading, there is a newly-fledged theory extant, that no man can be honest and a Union man if he lives south of Mason and Dixon's line and owns slaves. Particularly, if slaves are owned, it is a foregone conclusion that he will sooner or later be tabooed from the army, but assur-

Under these circumstances the General feels called upon to define his views with relation to all this class of men, and to say what he is prepared to do in such cases.

Union, the rebellious States must be coerced into submission. This is the one great end we have in view-and this end must and shall be attained. Without passion, from a sense of duty, trusting in the God who abhors pride and all injustice, we march onward to that end.

That the people of the South have been deluded by ambitious demagogues, deceivd by lying misrepresentations, carried away, some by natural sympathies, others by an irresistible current of circumstances that many have even been forced into a participation in the rebellion, we well know. We both know and deplore the cruel necessities of the situation made for them by their rulers. We abhor the grinding despotism which has devoured their substance, depopulated their valleys, converted peaceful neighborhoods into haunts of banditti, and substituted a reign of oppression and terror for the mild Government under which, but two short years ago, they were so happily living. We pity them-we have pitied them-even while duty compelled us to unsheath the sword against them; and though so long as they confront us in arms our swords shall never be returned to their scabbards, we yet will gladly hail the day when this desolating and unnatural war shall cease.

For this reason the General commanding is disposed to hold out every encouragement to these misguided men to lay down their arms, and abandon the desperate cause in which they are embarked, return to their homes and families, and resume once more the tranquil occupations of

All that will be exacted of those who will honestly do so will be to take the non-combatant's parole and give proper security that they will keep it. So long as they observe this parole, obey the laws, and deport themselves as peaceable citizens, they shall not be molested by any officer or soldier belonging to this army.

But, if false to their pledges and un-grateful for the generosity shown them, they are found conveying information to the enemy, trafficking with him, aiding him with supplies or money, or in any other way violating the spirit of their engagements, they will be summarily dealt with as spies or perjured traitors with the utmost rigor allowed by the laws of war.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 14. A special to the Commercial, from Nashville, says the Murfreesboro Rebel Banner of Saturday announces that Jeff. Davis arrived there on Friday. He reviews Hardee's division at Nolinsville to-morrow.

[YESTERDAY'S NOON DISPATCHES.]

Shortly after 9 o'clock the Second corps. Gen. Conch, moved out from the upper part of the city with a strong detachment of skirmishers. The enemy yielded gradually, though they contested our progress with great stubbornness, and for some time the rattle of musketry was incessant.

At the same time this movement comenced the batteries of the division stationed on the bluffs across the river opened with shell to cover our advance. The rebel infantry having fallen back to their first line of intrenchments and rifle pits, their batteries opened with a rapid fire upon our columns, which had now come to a rary halt, and who were awaiting the result of the artillery fighting. For some time our artillery on the bluffs cops, the front extending but a short kept up a heavy fire on the rebel batteries with much better success. The batteries to shelling our advanced troops.

Hancock's division had the advance, suported by the other division of corps; while the Ninth Corps, Gen. Wilcox, remained under arms in town, in readiness to advance. From the former they drove the rebels; making prisoners of some, while the remainder took refuge behind earthworks. This was accomplished after most heroic and long continued efforts, under a murder-Unable to hold out against the terrible fire they now encountered, they finally retired in good order, carrying away their wounded.

They fell back to their original line of pickets, thus holding the ground which they first occupied and which they held until morning, when they were relieved by Steneman's command. IRON-CLADS FOR THE REBELS .- The Halifax Chronicle, of November 25th, speaks thus definitely, and apparently reliably, in regard to the construction of iron-clads for the rebels in England: In the yard of the government contractor at Liverpool there is a shed wherein two massive frames are slowly reaching completion, which have not been provided for by the First Lord of the Admiralty, and which are evidently destined to bear ere long, not the "meteor flag," but the Southern cross of the new Confederacy. Five iron-clads, it is certain, will soon be launched. For equipments to this small but grim fleet the Southerners have at hand stores of arms and ammunition, cautiously purchased and stored.

The Chronicle connects Lieut. Maury's visit to Europe with these vessels.

The ball lodged in his shoulder, which was afterwards extracted by Dr. Goldsmith, after a painful operation. The soldier was not

THE CONCERT LAST NIGHT .- If Gottschalk was not satisfied with the audience last night, and the generous—we may say warm welcome extended to him-then he is a most ungrateful man. Notwithstanding the terribly disagreeable state of the weather, the hall was very nearly filled with the beauty, fashion, wealth, and intelligence of the city. To say that we were pleased with the performances would be no more than the truth, while we cannot say we were satisfied. There was evident to us an anxiety, if not a determination, to push the programme through with all possible haste, and this determination was fixed as a fact. Before the audience were all out of the hall, Gottschalk and his party were in an omnibus, and on their way to New Albany, bound for St. Louis, Chicago, or some other point. We only mention this fact to prove that we were not mistaken in believing the programme hurried. The concert began

Quartermaster's Office—Green street, two doors above say that there is very little true music in his compositions. There is a great deal of good grammatical harmony-collections and dashes of melodic or harmonic pearlstrills, and shakes, and runs-diminuendoes and crescendoes-very pretty-very graceful-very pleasant as sweet sounds, but lacking in soul-in essence. There is no motive in their conception and execution -corner of Third and Walnut except the sordid one of pleasing or astonishing by ad captandum exhibitions of agility in the fingers or power in the wrist. We do not know that he pretends to be a composer of music-we only know that he is a collector and combiner of sweet sounds. One excuse for him is, that this is all the rage now with certain would-be masters of a vitiated taste. But Gottschalk's abilities as a pianist, which none will deny, should lift him above such a set, and urge him to composition that shall express some idea; or if he lacks in originality, as we think he does, then he should drop composing, and cling to the masters, many of whose conceptions even he has not yet mastered, if we may judge by his indifference of last night. Of Carlotta Patti we cannot say much.

She has a pretty voice, but not as welltrained and regulated as we expected. Like Louisa Pyne, she throws out pearls of melody, but they are only pearls-there is no life, no soul, no feeling in them. Her voice is rather thin in quality, though not enough so to seriously impair it-perhaps we had better say rather delicate-lacking in volume, though not deficient in power. try, costs sixty, cents per month, or $6 00 per or two or more fancy tones-very high, very clear, and very pretty-which she is fond of exhibiting, even when there is no excuse for it. THE SITUATION .- The position of the two armies on the Rappahannock is unchanged. Burnside has a heavy operation before him but from present indications, we think he witl accomplish all he has in view. We do not suppose his object is to whip, or try to whip, the rebel armies at that point.

Banks has landed somewhere, and will wery seen be heard from. In this connection, and in view of the situation of affairs about Richmond, Jeff. Davis' trip to Knoxville and Murfreesboro has a very suspicious (to the rebels) look about it. Why should he leave Richmond just now, and get out West, where there is no need of his presence? THE COLLECTION OF DEFACED POSTAGE TAMPS .- The Postoffice Department has ously engaged in the collection of defaced stage stamps, as they allege for the nanufacture of papier mache. A special gent recently found in a village in the estern part of New York State an aculation of between fifty and sixty housand stamps, which has been removed from letters to be sent to parties in New York city who had contracted for them. Those who gathered them were in good he case with those to whom they were to be POSTAL PAYMENTS .- The Toronto Glob ays that a curious dispute has arisen between the Canadian and American Govern nents, in reference to the payment of the balance due for postal services by the department at Washington to that at Quebec The American Government offers to pay in its depreciated currency, contending that Canada is in the position of an ordinary contractor, and must accept payment as such in the currency of the Government which employs her. The Globe thinks that the service, being rendered in Canada, ought to be paid for in Canadian currency.

A Novel Surrender .- A correspondent with the army at Cross Hollows, Arkansas, tells a funny story of an officer who became very thirsty during the progress of a skirmish, and went to a neighboring spring for a drink. As he arose he set down on his own heels, which were armed with a pair of tremendous Mexican spurs. The instant he felt the prick of the sharp rowels he thought the enemy were upon him, and a bayonet entering his flesh. When some of his men arrived he was bawling-"I sur render! I surrender!" at the top of his

CHEAP PRINTING PAPER .- At a meeting of the Associated Press of New York city, a committee was appointed to invite proposals for supplying the press of this city with printing paper for a term of years.

A proposal has already been received from a party to supply at a large reduction from current rates. With large prompt cash-paying consumers like the New York Press, capital will soon flow into this channel, and the conspiring paper makers be defeated by their own weapons.

The question of repealing the duty on printing paper has been agitated by the country press. For the present the city press takes no action .- N. Y. Express, Dec. 9.

TRAITORS IN THE BROOKLYN NAVY YARD. The Charleston Advertiser states that a let ter received in that city from an officer on board the gunboat Dawn, dated Vernon river, Ga., says that of two lots of shells received by them from the gunboat Massachusetts not one of them would explode, some person having put a wet patch between the powder. These shells were all shipped from the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

THE N. Y. World believes Mr. Stevens project is simply a plan to depreciate the currency to such a point that holders will be glad to get rid of it on any terms. By this means he expects to secure a market for Government bonds, on which the interest will be paid in the same depreciated and irredeemable paper.

The New York Journal of Commerce The New York Journal of Commerce argues that if we amend the Constitution to exclude all slavery, the same spirit, in the end, will put down one religion and put
